Chanville Gazette, 7th. THE RUSSIAN LAPOSITION Paris, Tuesday, July 23, 1867.

I continue my stroll through some of se external portions of the Exhibition he external portions of the Exhibition, of commencing from the Russian carriage is partment, which I had just reached in my last letter. Close adjoining this stands that very remarkable illustration of Russian peasant or farm life, known as the Isba, or dwelling-house of the now eman cipated tiller of the soil in the empire of the Car. And have a fine emportunity he Czar. And here a fine opport tion and progress of the unabitants f various regions of the earth, for which he present exhibition is so conspicuously houses of the Far West, which has been transported to the banks of the Soine and now here we have a parallel phase of the Far Northeast. Such an abode as the Russian 18 du seam to be just about on par, materially speaking, with that of the American Western lurns on the verge of the prairies. Both are in a sense pioneers and both are specimens of the developing alternative of the walvy emission.

It consists of two structures, with a spacious court letween, but all under the same roof, so that in wixter the inhabitants and all their requirements are sungly covered in. On the right accord the dwelling house proper, the inhabited rooms being all up stairs. In the court are stowed away all the farming apparatus and implements, amongst which I remarked a McCormicks reaping unachine, certainly by far the most striking evidence of intelligence to be found on the premises. The left hand structure appears to be devoted The jointing of the doors and windows is especially good, and so are the locks and hinges. There are some specimens of ornamental trunks and cases; which are curious and not devoid of taste. The harness for the horses in the court-yard is well made, and there are some famous winter overcoats for the men, made of wash-leather ontside and lined with common fors, capable of setting any weather at defance. In the store-room is set out a large and curious collection of dry lish, and having all reared in the galaticities of the owners, made of the gayest odurs, and with a profusion of tawdry mamments which would satisfy even a ingers love of thery. A collection of children's toys complete so far this pic-ture of Bussean life. But when we look

Plano Fortes.

During the time in which the Suprema Jury on piano fortes at the luternational Exhibition, in Paris, were making their decision and awarding the two highest gold premiums to our two leading houses, one of our young but high-spirited firms has achieved one of the most important improvements ever made in plano fortes, by which means the character, tone, and power of a common-size Square Plano is brought to an equal level with a full-size Grand. Our present piano fortes, which, for the second time, have gaited such an important victory over their Luropeau rivals, have derived their high state of perfection from this circumstance only, that a few clever and taleuted heads are constantly employed in hringing out new improvements. They are perfectly well aware that the manutacturer who contacts himself with his old scale and pattern can make no progress, and, as there is no standstill, he who does not advance.

tents himself with his old scale and pat-tern can make no progress, and, as there is no standatill, he who does not advance must go backward. On the other leand, there can be no question that this desire, which is the life of trade, has produced a great many so-called improvements, some of which have seen the light of day but once, others, baptized with the names only to deceive the ignosant, have been used to keep up a tottering reputation while only a few could be mentioned where the success of the inven-

A special Omaha dispatch of today says that a freight train on the Union Pacific Railroad was thousan from the track last night at Plum Creek Station by the Indians. The engineer, fireman and brakeman were killed. The increhandies was burned. It is also reported that three or four men at the station were killed. This outrage is supposed to have been committed by Spotted Tail's band, who have been feeding at the p blic expense for some time.

The steamer Silver Lake that arrived from Fort Benton was fired into by the Indians 10 miles above Fort Rice. One of the crew was wounded.

Another dispatch says the Indians atb, was chosen as umpire, and, withthe daties of that office most satisfactorily to the members of both clubs llis excellent performance of the duties of that responsibe office was rewarded with three hearty cheers from both clubs at the cluse of the game.

THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA

The first discovery of the northern part of this continent has been shrouded in mystery much more profound than the accounts of the discovery of the West Indies, of Mexico, or of South America. Recent studies by various explorers in the Italian and Spanish chronicles have thrown much light on these questions, and we have now a curious study by Mr. Deane, of a great map of the world by Selastian Cabot, which does more to clear up their intricacies. Mr. Deane, in presenting a copy of this map to the Antiquarian Society, explained its historical value—and went beyond the points immidiately illustrated in it, to discuss and to decide some of the curious questions at incide. His paper is now printed by the society.

SMALL TALK.

New York Gazette, 31

It is a very common thing to speak with ontempt of "small talk," as it is called, es-socially among young men of education, sho are just beginning to think of the more serious affairs of life and philosophy. en are social beings, and that the vaecreation.

e. is actually gra-eful, and party or securets. What is a party or small talk?

We suspect that in most cases of professed contrapt for small talk am ng wintering professed contrapt for small talk is out of reach conference at every opportunity suggested by the conclusion of a "unject." The position is an awkward one, and as the confirming result. The femsile adolescent, fortunately for the comfort of both aexes, is generally gifted with small talk by nature, and often comes to the assistance of her embarrassed 'correlative' in a very fas, nating and peculiarly womnly way by doing the talking and beneficent foresight of Nature commends our unlimited admiration.

But small talk has its degree like every thong else. There is some talk so excessively minute that microscopic examination fails to disclose any sense. A frequent m stake of young men whose eligible at women, negrowls at wooial evil, and scandalous advertisements - that was the intelligence, the "social evil, and scandalous advertisements - that was the energy to overcome the natural tendency of the adolescent human male to relapse the social evil, and scandalous advertisements - that was the energy to overcome the natural tendency of the excent such that was the energy to overcome the natural tendency of the excent of the social evil, and scandalous advertisements - that was the energy to overcome the natural tendency of the know. Said the young be that was the least hit of atos at the during may absence When I returned I hardy recognized with sample and peculiarly womanly way by doing the talking the meaning of the house, and accordance in the profess of the house, and accordance in the returned I hardy recognized with the ground. with lovely boquets of roses, the ground with files, and quent mistake of young men who are git-ed with this very easential social conveni-ence is the idea that ladies in society are not constituted as a second of the society are ence is the idea that ladies in soc ety are not constituted to appreciate anything except small talk, and the smallest kind of small talk at that. "My dear sir, said a lady friend of ours to a gentleman, 'you talk to us ladies as if we were fools, and you think we want you to do it. I have just overheard you talk ing very sensibly to another centleman, and now you turn around other gentleman, and now you turn around to me and begin to talk nonsense. She was fully as frank, perhaps, as she was polite, but what she said was a very excel-lent lint.

Small talk, too, has its own proper times and places. The public lecture, for instance, is not a proper place and at the most delicate air in an opera, is hardly a proper time to indulge it. But in its place and time it is pleasing and appropriate and, for our own part, an hour of small talk with an intelligent woman is decidedly preferable to many other forms. ecidedly preferable to many other forms

Note—People don't knock the necks off bottled homemade wine. I found out afterwards that Charley had heen to the cellar plundering around, and in tasting my currant wine made this summer he had left the spigot turned so that instead of racking off it all leaked out.

Now, I had come home from my short visit doubly armed with tenderness for my husband, and with good resolutions for the management of my home, and it would not do for me to show any impatience the first thing, so I proceeded to my room and there was confusion worse confounded. Bly heautiful lace curtains that I had done up myself, pinning down every point, were twisted as tight as a rupe, and tied in a hard khot. Every drawer and press was opened wide, and all of Charley's clothes were lying around loose. What puzzled me the most was to see my cedar chest turned upside down, and my Saratoga trunk stretched open, with trays piled outside, like a toppled cohhouse. I went to the hureau to untie my bonnet, and there was the boot-jack, lemon-squeezer, and punch-bowl, a pair of pants were thrown over the looking glass, and a bottle of hair oil broken, the oil had soaked into the marbletop, and run down the side of the burrau upon the carpet, and upon a queershaped article that seemed to be a stocking, hut looked as plump, almost, as if it had "something in." By curiosity was excited, and, after satisfying myself that it was not alive. I picked it up, and what do you think it was but one of my wedding stockings. I put my hand in and drew out, one by oue, stocking tops of different lengths, British bose, lamb's wool and clock, a dozen, and all marked in sister's delicate hand, with maiden name—"Lucy Spriggens. This was too much, and I called for Charley to come up.

"What is the matter dear?" he answered in kit homemand. The ologasal trees of "Big Tree Valley," California—those nearthly survivors of a past age of gigantic growth—are beyond all doubt the greatest enriceities of the kind on the earth. Leaving them out of account, it is probable that sontheast Missouri and the neighboring portion of Arkansas produces the largest trees to be found anywhere else in the world. The mannibilished notes of Prof. Swallow a Geological Survey of the State give the dimensions of some of these vegetable monsters. The largest is a sycamore in Mississippi county, 65 feet high, which, two feet above the ground, measures 43 feet in circumference. It is hollow—a mere shell—the cavity measuring 154 feet in diameter in one direction, and 13 in an other.

OUR CONSULAR AGENT AT DAMAS CUS.

There is no American Consulat Dama cus, hut a Consular Agent, as noble specimen of a venerable Griental as it whole Eastern world can firmish. I has seen Abrabam and Jeremish and Itani world a seen Abrabam and Jeremish and Itani was dear a seen Abrabam and Jeremish and Itani seen Abrabam and Jeremish and Paniel over and over again—curling beard and flowing robe; sandals, girdle, juk-horn, and all. Not an uufair model for the first-uanced was Salahdeen, the Consul, whose advanced years caused many of his duties sick to glance over the papers—never a word from Gail Hamilton or Fanny Fern, and as for the good lights. Mrs Scourney

> Attending the venerable mother entered a young girl of about fourteen, small and delicate in form and feature, and exceedingly pretty. Her black hair was plaited in broad braids that were long enough to reach the shoulders about which the ends were left to fall in soft fringes. Her wide Turkish trousers were of rose colored sisk, the sleeves of her embroidered jacket fell away loosely from a white arm—a little jaunty Greek cap surmounted the glossy braids, the silken tassel reaching to the salky fringes of her hair. Sne did not take her seat, Euglish tashion, with the mother on the divan, as is sometimes done by way of courtesy to the guest, but dropped a la Turk ou the cushions near our feet. While we were saying to ourselves, "What a sweet child this is!" and wondering whethershe would ever develop the affections of young ladyhood, the old man spoke of her as the wite of his son, and said they had been married three years. It is not ancomment of marrieges to this each. as the wife of his son, and said they had been married three years. It is not uncommon for marriages to take place in the East when the bride is only eight years of age. The favorite wife of the Prophet Mohammed was seven at the time of his hetrothal, and he waited for her but a year, and took, meantime, one or two others as a solace for his loneliness. others as a solace for his loneliness. Cool sherbits, sweetmeats, coffee, and he smiser-mouthed uarghileh were neught, the gold-fringed napkin passed from hat of to hand, meantime, Salahdeen told us we had come to Damaseus at an incepportune time. Nowhere throughout the Turkish dominions, he said, is the intelerance and jealousy of the followers of homometers are not provided in the salah seen so excited by news of a slight victory of the Cretaus and Greeks over the lurks as to create apprehensions of an tory of the Cretaus and Greeks over the Turks as to create apprehensions of another massacre. Inflammatory circulars had been posted in the mosques, many families had left the city, and much auxiety was felt, particularly on the part of the Greeks, of whom there are great numbers in Itamascus. He gave us an interesting account of his own preservation from the massacre in 1840. His only precaution had been the provision of several bags of small co.ns, which he guessed rightly would be the most powerful weapons in his defense. When the great blow came he was not passed by.

The first attack was in his own house. They came into this room, where we were sitting, an excited, blood-thirsty throng, shouting for "Allah and the Prophet, opening one door at the instant he closed.

shouting for "Allah and the Prophet, opening one door at the instant he closed an opposite one, but he had thrown behind him a ful handful of small coin. If they did not find him there, he knew they would stop to search the money, and also to search for more, and when their search was finished he was several squares away. Turning a corner, he came upon a second detachment of the infuriated Turka, issuing from a street in which they had left every house desolate. His mantle proved an insufficient disguise, for with a yell they started in pursuit. He turned and rau on, till a lane gave him a chance to escape from sight a moment, when again he scattered abroad his seed, and the greedy Mussulmans stopped for the quick-pringing harvest.
